Subsequently, after having received the documentation of the candidates from the office and having examined the list of the candidates, it inserts, during the second meeting, a declaration showing that the commissioners are not in a relationship of kinship or affinity up to the fourth degree included, among them and with the candidates and that therefore there are not the causes of abstention referred to in articles. 51 and 52 of the Civil Procedural Code.

The Commission forms the merit ranking in decreasing order, adding the score of the qualifications to that of the interview.

For the purposes of awarding grants, a research doctorate or, for the sectors concerned, a qualification in the medical area accompanied by adequate scientific production is a preferential qualification.

In the event of equal merit, preference will be given to the female candidate and, subordinately, to the one with a younger age.

TITLE	School Dropout: Design and Evaluation of an Evidence-Based Program
DESCRIPTION	The research aims to provide education professionals with a reliable source of research evidence and effective strategies to address the issue of early school dropout. Specifically, through an evidence-based approach, the focus will be on designing and subsequently evaluating an intervention program for preventing this phenomenon in lower secondary schools in the context of Southern Italy. This process will be guided by rigorous research methods in order to generate additional evidence that takes into account the specific characteristics of this geographic area.

TITLE	Problematic Social Media use among Italian mid-Adolescents: from the identification of Risk/proTective factors to the co-design and evaluation of a self-help app (SMART Project)
DESCRIPTION	Social media (SM) use constitutes a large portion of mid-adolescents' daily lives. A significant percentage of adolescents experience intense or problematic social media use (PSMU), an aetiologically-complex behaviour potentially associated with psychological distress. Four Units from northern, central and southern Italy will integrate their expertise for the so-called "SMART project" aiming to: (i) advance knowledge on PSMU in mid-adolescents (14-17 years); (ii) codesign an unguided self-help app for promoting awareness and functional SM use, (iii) test feasibility and provide preliminary findings on its effectiveness to further improve and adapt theapp. The SMART project is organised into 5 working programs (WPs): WP1 - management and coordination; WP2 - knowledge advancement on PSMU using a longitudinal design and a mixed methods approach; WP3 - co-design an unguided self-help app for reducing PSMU; WP4 - the app will be deployed and adapted, after testing its feasibility and potential effectiveness in a pilot study;WP5 - project dissemination.

TITLE	Children's digital identity: personal, family and community determinants in assessing risks and opportunities in the use of AI-based technologies.
DESCRIPTION	The research aims to map the risks and opportunities of the digital environment for children from an interdisciplinary perspective and according to an ecosystem model. In order to develop new contents for the interpretation of the best interests of the child in the digital framework, the current normative gaps should be covered starting from personal, family and community determinants that impact the use that young users make of IoT services and AI Apps. The research consists of an exploratory part which will explore the impact of the abovementioned determinants on the unfair/uncontrolled or effective use of AI-based technologies, using quantitative and qualitative methods; and an application research part that will share – according to the action research model – the knowledge acquired with families, schools, educational services, associations, policy makers, IoT service providers and AI-developers and the children themselves. That approach will strengthen our impact in terms of sharing awareness on risks and opportunities, increasing citizenship participation on the topic and it will be able us to identify guidelines shared on more levels.

TITLE	Routine outcome monitoring and therapist feedback
DESCRIPTION	The present project aims to conduct the first feedback-informed psychotherapy study in Italy, and to examine potential barriers that can limit its widescale adoption in the health care system. For the purposes of this study, we will implement the use of routine outcome measures by using an online platform which is adopted to monitor psychological treatment delivery. The aims are: to examine the benefit of providing therapists with progress feedback to improve the effectiveness of mental health care; to explore the experience of both patients and therapists who have used the online platform. The study adopts a case-control quasi-experimental design. The progress feedback comparison involved a randomly selected group of therapists receiving feedback which will be compared with a no-feedback control benchmark. Therapists will receive the feedback only for the adult patients suffering from depression and anxiety in their caseload. This project will advance the state-of-the-art in the online feedback to therapy and can support the adoption of routine outcome monitoring in treatment delivery.

TITLE	Prediction of psychopathological outcome and parental reflective functioning on mothers and fathers: assessment of perinatal risk factors
DESCRIPTION	The perinatal period may represent a particularly challenging time. Studies have highlighted an association between several perinatal risk conditions and poor parenting. Indeed, all these risk factors may, on the one hand, increase the risk for developing psychopathological outcomes and, on the other hand, disrupt parental reflective functioning abilities which would, in turn, reduce parenting abilities. This project aims at a real-world detection of all environmental, social, psychological, and behavioral conditions which may favor or obstacle to the development of parenting abilities in both mothers and fathers within a longitudinal framework starting during pregnancy and lasting up to 6 months after delivery. More specifically, we aim at employing machine learning techniques to develop predictive models of psychopathological outcomes and reflective functioning in both parents. The selected figure must have skills in psychological assessment and in the most appropriate relational methods with the specific target of the research; methodological skills in the use of qualitative-quantitative and longitudinal research designs; skills in data analysis with parametric and multivariate statistics and skills in writing scientific reports.
